

The Enneagram: Nine Gates to Integration

Enneagram work, through compassionate and rigorous self-inquiry combined with skillful coaching and guidance, is the generative work of human integration.

A workshop series with Dan McKee: An intimate and depth-cohort experience, limited to 12 committed individuals

For coaches, therapists and others who aspire to guide others in their self-discovery and holistic and practical integration.

And, who are committed to undergo their own practice of discovery and integration while learning to develop enneagram work-skills as a craft in service to others.

The enneagram, when used with expertise provides a unique full-spectrum map and set of skills for learning that can be used in service to self and others.

The Cohort Experience: We'll take time in the beginning to co-create a safe and honest container / environment that will allow, evoke and conspire to bring out the best in each of us. Based on the belief (and many years of experience) that the mastery of teaching comes as much or more from the group's influence on each other, we'll use the wisdom, commitment and vulnerability of our collective participation to masterfully ground the learning.

SESSION DATES

With this small group we'll attempt to establish dates that work for all. If seriously interested you'll receive access to a few options you can weigh in on. The goal is to begin in mid to late September.

COSTS

$1,600

*We'll make payment schedules flexible to meet your needs.
